5 after-school programs reshaping how APS students learn

By Candace Dantes September 23, 2019

Young Rembrandts: For more than 30 years, Young Rembrandts has provided after-school art for kids of North Fulton and DeKalb counties. And drawing lessons go above mere coloring and tracing lines. Youth strengthen in social/intellectual development, academic performance and fine motor skills. A global program, its after-school enrichment caters to children ages 3.5 to 12. Sparking both sides of the brain to create, Young Rembrandts' curriculum teaches kids about everything from cartooning to the importance of persistence, patience, discipline and detail. These 21st-century learners also sharpen in self-confidence and self-esteem.
