SUMMER SLIDE AND SUMMER BRAIN DRAIN

Prevent Summer Learning Loss

Doesn't matter what you call it, if summer days are consistently lazy - a significant amount of what went into building your child's brain during the school year will start to leak out. Summer brain drain can amount to a significant learning loss, as much as 2 ½ months per student, with the biggest losses in math and reading. Consistent summer losses can cause a child to be 2 years behind their peers by 6th grade. By 9th grade, summer losses are considered responsible for 2/3 of the achievement gap.

Get this eBook full of ways to keep all the hard earned knowledge from going down the drain without sacrificing the fun.
